DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 30.—A telegram from Colorado City says: Deputy Sheriff Wayne Parks was assassinated about 1 o'clock, this morning, by some one lying in ambush. He accompanied a young lady to a ball last evening and was returning from the lady's home and just as he was starting across a vacant block was fired on. Persons living near by reached the spot but found Mr. Parks dead. The weapon used was a shot gun loaded with buck shot. Ten balls struck Parks, three entering the neck and breaking the bone. The affair is shrouded in mystery and no developments as yet have been made as to who the assassin was. Mr. Parks has been deputy sheriff here for three years and was very popular as an officer and had many warm personal friends. Deceased was one of the best known officers in Texas. Five years ago he was in the State Ranger service and was a sergeant in the force that took such an active part against outlaws in west Texas.

A Desperate Footpad Killed.
Special Telegram to The Star.

OMAHA, Oct. 30.—Several street car drivers have recently been held up by thugs and the company cash box stolen. Another attempt of the same kind was made last evening and the robber who undertook the job was shot dead for his pains. The facts are as follows: At 6:45 H. S. Woolbridge, driver on the Eighteenth street line, sat on the front platform of his car going up Eighteenth street. The reins were tied in a knot and hung over the brake, Woolbridge's hands being in his pockets, the right hand grasping a Smith & Wesson revolver. As the car neared Spruce street a medium sized man, wearing a black mask, suddenly appeared at the side of the car and exclaimed, "give me that cash box," at the same time presenting a long navy revolver over the dash board. Woolbridge made no answer, but drew the Smith & Wesson from his pocket. The masked robber evidently caught a glimps of the weapon in the dim light from the fare box window, and instantly fired with his revolver. Woolbridge did not move from his seat, but taking steady aim at the robber's breast, pulled the trigger of his revolver. The robber at the moment was not four feet from the cars, but the shot from Woolbridge's revolver did not seem to disconcert him in the least. He again fired at Woolbridge and then stepped around the car. Woolbridge jumped over the dashboard and, taking the opposite side of the car, passed around the rear end a few paces behind the masked highwayman. The latter, who seemed to be in no particular hurry as yet, turned once more and once again fired at the driver, who also let go again with his Smith & Wesson, and this shot quickened the pace of the highwayman, who turned again long enough, however, to send back another bullet. At this Woolbridge, seeing his good ammunition going astray, stopped, and placing his revolver on his left hand for a rest once more pulled the trigger with his right. This shot sent the masked man plunging head foremost in the road. A crowd rapidly collected and the prostrated desperado was carried to the sidewalk. He died in ten minutes. He was a man apparently 23 years old. Around his waist was a belt filled with cartridges and he wore buckskin gloves. There was nothing on his person to denote his identity except a note book containing the name "Frank Wade." The only other entry in the book was "Omaha, Neb., Oct. 5. Commenced Oct. 17; ended in eleven and one-half days." The man was a stranger in Omaha, but several persons claim to have seen him around town the last few days. The body was taken to the morgue to await the inquest. Since the killing a picture has been discovered in the police department gallery corresponding almost exactly with the appearance of the desperado. It is a photograph of John Deane, alias John Davis, wanted for killing Conductor John Joyce in Iowa about a year ago. Woolbridge, the car driver who did the shooting, was placed under arrest immediately afterwards. He is 24 years old, unmarried and originally came from Marshall, Mo. There were two men and two girls in the car during the bombardment and all are enthusiastic in praise of Woolbridge's nerve. He will undoubtedly be released without trial.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.
By Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb. Oct. 30.—During the past month the "bobtail" street car line has been robbed in the outskirts of the city twelve or thirteen times by a solitary highwayman, who on each occasion has covered the driver with a revolver and made him hand over his cash box, usually containing $15 in change. On Wednesday night the highwayman robbed a driver in North Omaha, although the car was full of passengers. The robber covered the car with his revolver and backed it into the darkness, making his escape. Last night he attempted a similar robbery in the same locality, but the driver, instead of handing over the cash box, pulled a revolver, and the two men fired simultaneously, missing each other. The robber then fled, pausing at the edge of the sidewalk to fire another shot at the driver, who then fired twice, killing his assailant instantly. The dead man has been identified as the highwayman who has committed all the robberies and proved to be Charles Collins, a notorious character.

Shot in a Saloon Row.

LAREDO, Tex., Oct. 30.—About 12 o'clock last night an unfortunate tragedy occurred in this city in which Tom Collins, proprietor of the Vienna music and barroom was shot by Lieutenant Thurston, of company I, Sixteenth infantry, stationed at Fort McIntosh near this city. The lieutenant and a party of friends were in the saloon when a dispute arose over some trivial questoin and one of the party expressed doubt as to the truth of a statement made by Tommy Collins's wife when he (Collins) came from behind the bar and struck the person who made the statement. They were separated and Collins jumped over the bar, at the same time remarking: "I'll fix you." He reached under the bar, getting a soda water bottle which he threw at his adversary and made a grab for more, when Thurston, who had been a spectator, told him not to throw again. Collins threw a bottle at Thurston, and was going to follow it with another, when Thurston shot him, the ball striking above the breast bone on the left side of the neck, lodging in the back of the neck. The wound was not considered necessarily fatal and the wounded man was doing well up to 11:30 a. m. yesterday, when he got up from his bed, contrary to his physician's orders, and walked around, causing a violent hemorrhage, from which he died later. Lieutenant Thurston gave himself up this morning and after the coroner's inquest was bound over in the sum of $5,000 to appear before the grand jury. From all the evidence and circumstances the killing was justifiable.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 30.—The murder mystery which has been exciting Franklin county for the past few days was solved to-day by finding the supposed murdered wife of Frank Whitely alive in Omaha, where she has been quietly working as a domestic ever since she mysteriously disappeared from Bloomington. It appears she left her husband owing to a quarrel and recently, when he was arrested for some swindling transaction, it was given out by one of his friends or confederates that he made way with his wife. As he was living with another woman this was believed and search was made for the burial place of the first wife and the search was kept up until today's discovery in Omaha.

CATTETSBURG, Ky., Oct. 30.—Yesterday on Carr's Fork in Knott county the men composing the Jones faction fell out among themselves and a desperate encounter ensued. No arrests. On the same day and in the same neighborhood, while John Barnum was endeavoring to escape from one of the deputy United States marshals' guards he was shot by the guard and instantly killed. He says the shooting was done in self defense; that having gone home from a ball in company with Henry and his wife, a dispute arose, in which jealousy was displayed. Henry started for a Winchester rifle, and as he did so Woods grabbed a revolver and shot him, firing four times, three balls taking effect. Woods will be given a hearing next week.

Miller, to be hanged at Grand Forks tomorrow, a very interesting correspondence has been closed between Governor Pierce and Judge McConnell, of Fargo, who sentenced Miller. Judge McConnell replied that he would not request a reprieve and with the question thus settled Miller will be hanged to-morrow for the murder of Mrs. Snell and child.

CANON FARRAR.

He Christens a Grandson of Cyrus W. Field and Makes a Speech at a Banquet.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Yesterday Canon Farrar christened an infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Field, at Cyrus M. Fields's residence at Dobbs's Ferry. The child, which is a grandson of Cyrus, was named Harold Farrar.

The banquet to the Archdeacon in this city, last evening, was very successful. In his speech he said: "Of all bodies in the world, parliament was the calmest and least likely to be swayed by emotion. Twice had he seen its members magnificently allied, once when Mr. Gladstone made use of the words "the evils wrought by drink are more deadly than the three great scourges of war, famine and pestilence, because more continuous." "I do not undertake to say concerning America what may be the stain on the hem of her garment" he said on intemperance; "but I do say of England that not only is the hem stained but it has dyed all her white robes deep enough and carmine enough to incarnatine all the seas over which she rules."

John B. Gough traveled 2,000 miles to be present. There was an impressive scene when in closing his short address he stepped forward and exclaimed: "God bless you, Canon Farrar, for what you have done for humanity."

The guest of the evening bowed as if receiving a benediction, and Mr. Gough repeated his words which greatly moved the audience.

RUINING THE CITY.

Small-pox Bankrupting Montreal and Driving Her People Away.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—It is estimated by the authorities the daily expenses of the city are about $3,000, and at least $3,000,000 will be needed during the coming winter owing to the ravages of smallpox. Business seems prostrated, and such of the poor as are not ill appear to be preparing to move south and establish new homes in New England. So many have already arrived in New Hampshire as to give the people of that state much concern, and the state board of health was yesterday in conference with the Boston board in regard to the matter.

Stock Gambling in Paris.

Gamblers at the Paris bourse are divided into two classes—those who have a guichet and those who have not. A guichet is a paying-teller's window where notes can be presented. Those who have them are bankers, corporations, and heavy speculators. These people pay their differences on settlement day with promptness, and while it is perfectly true that shameful rascality is not infrequent, instances of upright, honest dealing on the bourse are equally numerous. The speculators without a guichet are known as amateurs and as hommes du monde, and in ninety-five cases out of one hundred both sorts end by "ouvant un bullion," which is a very pretty way of saying that they are bound to "peter out" in the long run. In the last crash there were about two thousand homme du monde ruined on the bourse, but very few of them avoided their losses, and those that did have been tabooed there and in social circles ever since. If you desire to take a flyer in rentes, Suez, Egypt, Panama, or Portuguese railways, you step into the bourse and hunt up your broker's clerk. There is an awful row going on; 500 or 600 men are yelling at the top of their voices, and everybody is pushing and crowding and rushing around as if mad. When you have found the clerk, whisper your order. "All right," says he, and he scribbles on a scrap that he tears out of a note-book and hands it to you. On this scrap there is an A or V. The first (achete) signifies that you have purchased; the other (vendu) that you have sold the amount of the stock, etc., indicated below. Since the existence of the bourse there has not been a solitary instance of such a memorandum being disputed. although there are no witnesses to the transaction, and simply because it is one out of which no lawsuit could possibly arise.

AUNT CLARA BROWN.

Death of the First Woman to Cross the Great American Desert.

Globe-Democrat.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 24.—"Aunt" Clara Brown, formerly a slave, who is credited with being the first woman to cross the plains into Colorado, died here late last night, at her home on Arapahoe street. She was the only female member of the Colorado Pioneers' association, and was the pet of that body, numbering over 400 people. Aunt Clara Brown was upwards of 83 years of age. She remembered the outbreak of the war of 1812 well, and was a half-grown girl at that time. In her youth she was owned by a planter in Logan county, Ky., who sold her to some one who emigrated to Kansas, where she managed to obtain her freedom and started with a wagon train to Colorado. She had no money with which to pay her passage and so acted as cook in order to pay for her transportation. The wagon train arrived at Denver in June, 1859, having encountered some 800 Indians on the way. Aunt Clara was never afraid of the Indians, as she had Indian blood in her veins, her grandparents having been savages, She was a born philanthropist. and when President Lincoln set the negroes free she took her savings and journeyed to Kentucky for her people. Later she returned with twenty-six members of her family, men and women, for all of whom she paid full wagon fare, and who have long since married and intermarried until they and their descendants form a notable part of the colored community in Colorado. Aunt Clara's husband and children were sold before the war. The children were in their infancy. Two years ago Aunt Clara heard that one of her slave-sold daughters was living at Council Bluffs, Ia., and she gathered enough money by hard labor to take her to Council Bluffs. There she met her daughter from whom she had been separated forty years, and brought her back to Denver with her. The long lost daughter was the sole comfort of Adnt Clara's declining days. In an early day here she engaged in numerous noble charities, turned her home into a hospital, a hotel, and general refuge for those who were sick or in poverty. If those who made her home their home were able to pay her for what they received she accepted it; if not, it did not matter. At one time she accumulated a large amount of property, but lost it all through the scheming of her agents.

A STRANGE LEGAL CUSTOM.

A Pound of Tobacco Presented to Every Jury in the District of Columbia.

Washington Cor. New York Herald.

There are some peculiar customs in connection with the administration of the courts of the District of Columbia, relics of the old Maryland laws; but one which strikes the ordinary observer as the most peculiar is that which requires a winning party to a civil suit to pay for the tobacco that the jury which tried the case is supposed to have used during the hearing of the case. Now, it happens sometimes that not one of the jurors uses tobacco in any form, and yet the pound of tobacco or its equivalent has to be paid the foreman of the jury the instant a verdict has been rendered. As litigants or their attorneys are not in the habit of carrying so much tobacco in their clothing, for custom requires a pound be given the jury, the lawyer on the winning side, as soon as the verdict is recorded, hands the foreman of the jury $1, which is just as good as the pound of tobacco. Sometimes a jury will try several cases in a day. If they do they will get $1 for each case from the winner. The juries put all their tobacco money together, and at the end of the term divide it among themselves, reserving a sufficient sum to buy for the foreman of the jury a cane, some kind of present for the bailiffs who attend the jury, and a bouquet for the judge who holds the court. The jury has legal claim for the pound of tobacco in every case, but there is no case recorded where the tobacco has been refused and a test case made. On the criminal side of the courts the judges can, if they desire, impose fines of pounds of tobacco instead of dollars. The penalty for wife-beating is from ten to 100 pounds of tobacco under the old laws. The old laws, however, are seldom, if ever, entered, for most of them are supplanted by modern ones. Under the former the courts can pierce a hole with a red-hot iron through the tongue of every one who blasphemes the Creator, but they do not do it. There is, however, just as good law for it as there is to hang persons in this district. Some overzealous Christians asked the enforcement of the law the first time Robert G. Ingersoll lectured in this city, but no attention was paid to the request. It was understood at the time that Colonel Ingersoll would be delighted with a prosecution of this kind. For doing the slightest labor on Sunday under the old Maryland law, from five to fifty pounds of tobacco was the penalty.

JUMBO'S SKELETON AND HIDE.

The Work of Mounting the One and Stuffing the Other Going on in Rochester.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 26.—The skeleton of the late Jumbo is now at Professor Henry A. Ward's natural science establishment in Rochester. Professor Ward, in writing to Mr. Barnum, says: "I have felt from the first that it is quite an undertaking to so prepare the skeleton that it shall travel safely around with the show; still it can be done to a certainty. All it wants is an extra strong mounting, and then special devices to relieve the leg bones of the weight of the body and to keep all perfectly stiff and firm. It is a fact that the bone will suffer some by the forcing process of driving out oil, and it will never look so white as it would by twelve or fourteen months' maceration and bleaching. We are getting on nicely with the work. The large sized bore which we have put through the long bones of the legs helped toward rapid progress. We drove out of them by using hot steam twenty-five gallons of marrow. I rather hope that you and Mr. Hutchinson will decide not to show the skeleton, but to let me turn it over, when done, to the Smithsonian. But whatever your wishes are I stand ready to fulfill them. The people of that institution are right that it will be nice work to mend the skull. It will be a good thing for them that it will be done here, where there are both experience and appliances for the purpose. Have confidence in me that Jumbo's hide will come out in good shape, and, like a skeleton, do credit to us all."

Something to Marry on.
Merchant Traveler.

"I understand Mr. Philpot Jenkins is to be married next week," remarked Mr. Blenkinsop to his wife.

"You don't say?" she replied, in that interrogatively contradictory way, common to women.

"Yes."

"What, that poverty-stricken, palsy-salaried thing?"

"The same."

"Well, I'd like to know what he's going to marry on."

"Really, my dear," said her husband, charitably, "I haven't read the cards yet, but I think he will be married on Wednesday."

CRUSHED BY A RAIL.

A YOUNG MAN MEETS A SAD FATE.

He is Mangled to Death on Board a Boat—A Hunter Kills His Friend—A Man Killed by a Train Near Des Moines—The Fire Record and Casualties Reported.

Special Telegram to The Star.

GALVESTON, Tex., October 29.—Harry Dubie, a native of this city and about 24 years old, met his death this morning at the brick wharf on board the schooner Douglas Harvey, on which vessel he was seeking information concerning the delivery of a message for his employers, Miller Brother's. He spoke to the stewart, and seating himself on one of the projecting pilings of the wharf facing the schooner's stern quarter, he indulged in a cheery conversation. On the schooner's deck lay piles of railroad iron. A gaff was on the mizzen mast sustaining the hoisting tackle operated by a donkey engine on shore, lifting iron clear of the rail to be guyed around and dropped on the wharf where it was received and piled to one side. This was the condition of the surroundings when a rail was swung into the air. It come toward Harry, who, fearing it would strike him, started to run to safe quarters. Had he remained in the pilot the fatal ending would have been averted, but he sought to escape by flight and ran into the very jaws of death. Heedless of warning cries to look out he continued. It was but a few steps yet it sufficed to bring him directly beneath the rail momentarily poised above him and then already descending with resistless force. His danger was seen when too late to avert it. He was even then beyond human intervention. Down came the rail, 600 pounds of unyielding iron falling with crushing violence on the back portion of his devoted head, bearing him face downward to the wharf. A cry of horror rang out and ready hands sprang toward him. The rail was quickly thrown aside but Harry Dubie was dead. Eyes moistened with sympathetic tears and stout hearts quailed at the ghastly sight of the horrid disfigurement. Tenderly they moved him from the blood and brains which marked the fatal spot, and summoned Coroner Fontain, who after complying with the formalities of law turned the remains over to Messrs. Crossman & Simpson for final preparation for the grave. He was a grandson of Commodore Chubb, and leaves a widowed mother, two sisters and a brother to mourn his untimely fate. He was a member of the Sealy Rifles and was held in high esteem by employers and acquaintances.

Great Damage by Floods.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 30.—The heavy rain during the past twenty-four hours has caused the greatest flood known in the past five years on the Western end and the Lexington branch of the Richmond & Allegheny railroad. The trestle work at South river was washed away and a mixed train on the Allegheny road was wrecked. Engineer Williams and the fireman are missing and are believed to be killed. All the passengers are safe. The Shenandoah Valley train is in trouble at some point. No particulars obtainable at this hour.

THE WALKUP TRIAL.

Mrs. Walkup Finishes Her Testimony—Another Important Witness to be Heard this Afternoon.

EMPORIA, Kas., Oct. 30.—The continuation of Mrs. Walkup's cross-examination to-day by Mr. Storry occupied the forenoon session. Witness handled her testimony under cross examination much better than in the previous afternoon and could not be forced to contradict herself in important matters. The counsel treated her courteously throughout. She said she slept up stairs one night—that of the fire—though she could not fix the night, and to a large number of questions she could not give a definite answer for lack of a clear recollection of all the events. She contradicted many of the statements made by witnesses as to her statements in conversation. The value of her evidence will depend upon the extent to which the jury receive it as reliable. Her demeanor throughout the examination made a very generally favorable impression upon the audience, as far as her bearing and intelligence are concerned. She concluded her testimony by saying she had never before been on the witness stand or in a court-room, and was congratulated at the close of her examination by her counsel and many of her friends.

The defense is to put Dr. Parr (it is believed) on the stand this afternoon, and his cross-examination is looked forward to with much interest. He is one of the majority of the regular practitioners in consequence of his quarrel with him on the Harry Liedfried case, and it is expected that he has no veneration for their opinion. The remaining testimony for the defense and rebutal testimony for the prosecution ill probably consume what is left of this week, and counsel will wait a day or two to convince the jury next week. There is no prevailing opinion to-day as to what the verdict will be.

THE FIRST LAKE STEAMER.

The Walk-in-the-Water and Her First Trip from Buffalo to Detroit.

The first steamer on the lakes was the Walk-in-the-Water, launched at Black Rock the 28th of May, 1818. She was built by Noah Brown, of New York, for G. & L. B. Stewart, of Albany—a small, oddly-built craft of some 300 tons burden. Her first voyage, however, demonstrated her superiority to sailing craft. That voyage was to Detroit. She left Buffalo at 1:30 Sunday afternoon and arrived at Dunkirk at 6:35 the same evening, and Erie the next morning, her captain having reduced steam so as not to pass the port in the night. At half-past 7 p. m. she left Erie, and arrived at Cleveland at 11 the next day (Tuesday); at twenty minutes past 6 sailed, and reached Sandusky Bay at 1 o'clock Wednesday; lay at anchor during the night, and then proceeded to Venice for wood; left Venice at 3 p. m., and arrived at the mouth of Detroit river, where she anchored during the night. "The whole time of this first voyage," says the Detroit Gazette, whose account I quote, "occupied forty-four hours and ten minutes, the wind ahead during the whole passage. Not the slightest accident happened during the voyage, and her machinery worked admirably. Nothing could exceed the surprise of the sons of the forest on seeing the Walk-in-the-Water move majestically and rapidly against wind and current without sails or oars. Above Malden they lined the shores, and expressed their astonishment by repeated shouts of 'Wiyoh nichee' (an exclamation of surprise). A report had been circulated among them that a big canoe would soon come from the 'noisy waters,' which, by order of the Great Father of the 'Chemo Komons'—Long Knives or Yankees—would be drawn through the lakes and rivers by a sturgeon. Of the truth of the report they were perfectly satisfied." Crowds thronged upon her at every port where she called, and inspected her curiously from stem to stern. She ran regularly between Buffalo and Detroit until the fall of 1821, when she was stranded on the beach at Buffalo. Her engine was then taken out and placed in a successor, the Superior.

A REMARKABHE STORY.

Allegation that the Present Orleanist Princes Do Not Belong to the House of Orleans at All.

Paris Letter.

A curious story has just been published by La France, a Conservative journal of this city, whichhas created a great sensation and caused much uneasiness in Orleanist circles. The author of this story, or revelation, is M. de Saint Felix, doctor of laws, and an eminent member of the Paris bar. The story in question was shown by M. de Saint Felix to Gambetta previous to the latter's death, and received the endorsement of the great tribune. M. de St. Felix, however, deferred the publication of the story until he should secure all the documents and proofs pertaining to it. These he claims to have now, and he announces that he will publish them in their entirety. M. de St. Felix will undertake to prove from the documents in his possession that the present Orleanist princes do not in reality belong to the house of Orleans at all. In 1773, so the story runs, Philippe Egalite, then only earl of Joinville, was traveling in Italy with his wife, who, during their tour, gave birth in Florence to a daughter, who was named Maria Stella. The Earl of Joinville fearing lest no more children would be born to him, as he was suffering from the effects of a shattered constitution and a dissolute life, gave his daughter to a seaman of the name of Chiappini, receiving in exchange a new born son of the latter. Chiappini received for his share in the transaction a large sum of money. His male child was represented as the son of Philippe Egalite, and afterwards became duke of Orleans, and in 1830 King Louis Philippe, of France, from whom the present Orleans family are descended. The poor girl Maria Stella, so cruelly sacrificed to the exigencies of royalty, subsequently married an english peer, Lord Newborough, and afterwards an actor. She has left many descendants, one of whom is a well known cantatrice. M. de St. Felix promises to reveal the latter's name when he shall publish all his documents in detail. It is needless to add that the publication of this bit of family history is eagerly awaited by the scandal-loving Parisian public.

A NEW HYPNOTIC.

Experiments With it in Germany—For What Cases it is Suitable.

The Berlin correspondent of the London Lancet writes concerning a new hypnotic: "Urethan, experimented on as to its narcotic qualities, first by Schmeideberg on animals, and by Von Jolly on men, forms white crystals, easily soluble in water, inodorous and of a not disagreeable taste, reminding one of saltpetre. Dr. Von Jaksch, after having made several experiments on rabbits, administered urethan 110 times in twenty different cases, and found that even half a gramme of it to one kilogramme of body weight produced no toxic effects. Doses of 0.25 to 0.5 gramme had either no perceptibly soporific effects whatever, or only after repeated administrations; doses of one gramme, however, never failed to produce sleep. Urethan principally acts upon the brain without perceptibly influencing the excitability of the peripheral sensitive apparatus; hence, as the author concludes from his observations, it proves ineffective to allay the harrassing cough of consumptive patients, neuralgia, and the intense lancinating pains from which persons affected with tabes are so often known to suffer. Urethan, according to the author, seems to exhibit the following advantages over other hypnotics: 1. It agrees with the patient. 2. It has absolutely no other effects. 3. The sleep produced by it resembles the normal physiological sleep. Dr. von Jaksen is of opinion that urethan is especially suitable for children, drunkards suffering from dilirium, and persons subject to fits of mania. The author always administered it without any corrigent. As it easily dissolves in water, sensitive patients may be given a solution of it with the addition of some corrigent."

A Good Young Man.
Detroit Free Press.

For some years past the driver of a milk wagon with a route in the eastern part of the city has been engaged to a girl living at home on Sixteenth street. The marriage day has been set two or three times, but something has occurred to prevent a fulfillment. The girl probably got discouraged, and the first thing the milkman knew he heard a report that she was to be married. He traced this report to an authentic source, and further learned that she was to step off last night. Such treachery filled his soul with frenzy, and he armed himself with a revolver as long as his arm and put in an appearance at the house just as the invited guests began to assemble. The object of his wrathy affections met nim in the cooiest manner, saying:

"Well, it isn't my fault. I waited for you three years."

"But why didn't you send me word that you were going to be married?"

"Oh, I hadn't time. You have no idea how busy I have been."

"But this must be stopped—it shall be stopped!"

"Please don't—my head aches," said the girl.

"I tell you I'll kill somebody," he shouted.

"Well, wait till after supper—come, don't be so noisy."

Her father came into the room just then and took the revolver away from the young man, and then threatened to thrash him if he didn't shake hands with the groom. When he had done this he had to stand by and see the girl married, and to afterwards eat supper with the others. The more beer he swallowed the more of a philosopher he became. In going home he was picked up by an officer, and in court yesterday morning he said to the judge:

"I kissed the bride, shook hands with the bridegroom and lent 'em my horse to go on a bridal tour. If that don't show that I'm a good man you may send me up for a year."

Wakeful Sleepers.
Chicago Herald.

"You have heard of cats and foxes sleeping with one eye open, haven't you?" said the cop on the corner to a reporter. "Of course you have. Well, I just want you to look at this Italian fruit man back here. I've been watching him for several weeks and he sleeps with one eye open as sure as guns. Look at him. He is asleep, with his head resting against the wall of the building, but see that right eye. It is just a bit open. For years and years this man has been sitting there sixteen to eighteen hours a day, Sunday and all, attending to his business. While awake he watches the eye of the passers-by, and if one of them glances at the fruit kind o' wistfully like, up jumps Mr. Italy, ready to sell him a 'nano' or pound of grapes or a pear. He has been doing that so long that now when he falls asleep his right eye—he is right-eyed, just as you are right-handed—his eye go right along 'tending to business just as if nothing had happened. I've watched him rouse out of sleep dozens of times a day just because some man looked at his fruit as he passed by, an' that without the man saying a word. He actually sleeps with one eye open.

Some of these Italians can sleep and have both their eyes and ears 'tend shop for 'em while they snooze, jumping up as quick as a cat if a man inquires the price of the apples or pears. But this chap's ear has never been educated up to it, an' he depends entirely upon his eye. But he rarely gets left."

He Worked the Baptism In.
Franklin Spectator.

A prominent Methodist clergyman tells the felling story of an old Baptist preacher who always contrived to lug baptism into hes sermons what his text might be. The old gentlemen was asked one day if he could possibly preach a sermon without alluding to his favorite doctrine. He said he could and would if they would give him a text woiihut any baptism in it. The first chapter of Ezra. 9th verse was selected, which reads as follows: "And this is the number of them: thirty chargers of gold, a thousand chargers of silver, nine and twenty knives." He entered the pulpit, raad his text and said: "My brethren, I don't see what they wanted of so many knives unless it was to cut the ice in order to baptize the people."

A Good King.

"Yes, my dear subjects," said King The, baw to a delegation that had called on him "I have decided to fight England."

"But," said the spokesman, "will not this deprive your majesty of the pleasure of killing us yourself?"

"Ah, well, one must not be selfish in this great world. I am willing to share my pleasure with Queen Victoria. And then, you, my dear subjects—your pleasure should be considered too. My method of beheading must have become somewhat monotonous to you. And, besides, the queen's method is English, y' know."

A Sailor's Story of Inhuman Treatmnet Upon the High Seas.
San Francisco Alta.

A medium sized Cornishman, about 32 years of age, who gave the name of Joseph T. Liddy, called upon Justice of the Peace Burke, yesterday afternoon, and asked for permission to sue out a complaint without costs against A. C. Otis, master, and J. H. Brown, first mate, of the American bark Solitaire, which arrived here about three weeks ago from Cardiff, Wales, the object of the complaint being to recover $299 damages for personal injuries received at their hands during the voyage. When asked for the grounds of his complaint, Liddy related a tale of inhuman and brutal treatment on the high seas that is generally conceded to be found only in dime novel literature. Seven months ago, while in Cardiff, he shipped as a common sailor on the Solitaire, bound for San Francisco at the regulation wages of £2 a month. Everything progressed smoothly until they were about six days out, when both the captain and first mate developed characteristics for brutality and arrogance that foreboded a living hell for the crew before the voyage was ended. Upon the slightest provocation the men were knocked down with a belaying pin or a rope's end. and then kicked because they did not get up quick enough. The majority of the crew were Scandinavians, and submitted to this kind of treatment without a word of complaint, but Liddy was of a different nature and frequently committed the imprudence of resenting the blows he received by threatening what he would do when the ship reached port. This only made matters worse; and Liddy soon became the special object of attention at the hands of the cruel officers, who seemed bent on breaking his spirit, even if they had to broak every bone in his body in the attempt. On one occasion he was beaten and kicked into a state of insensibility, and was left lying upon the deck bleeding and almost dying. One of his teeth had been knocked out, his eyes were blackened and swollen, his ears were torn, and his body so bruised and sore that for many a long night after he was unable to lie down and take his proper and much-needed rest. In addition to this the crew were half starved and compelled to exist upon short rations of the poorest character. Even the mild natures of the Scandinavian sailors were at last aroused, and when the voyage was nearing its end they promised Liddy their aid in the prosecution of Otis and Brown, upon the arrival of the vessel at San Francisco, if he would take upon himself the responsibility of bringing the matter to the attention of the courts. This Liddy agreed to do, but concluded he would endeavor to recover some damages before instituting a legal prosecution.

After hearing this story, Judge Burke did not hesitate in making an order to have a complaint issued without costs. Just before leaving, Liddy promised that when the case came up for trial to-morrow or Tuesday he will make some revelations about the actions of the captain and mate during the voyage that are only equaled in cruelty by those of the officers of the famous ship Gatherer, who were tried in this city about fours ago.

The man related his wrongs in a straightforward and apparently truthful manner; but seafaring men are so given to romancing that it is quite possible, if not probable, that his story was considerably exaggerated.

FOUND DEAD.

A Man Picked Up at Wyandotte With a Bullet Hole in His Head.

A man was found near the Missouri Pacific railroad between the powder house and the road near Wyandotte this afternoon. He is supposed to be a man named Parker, from some town in Iowa. Near him was a 32-caliber revolver, and scattered about him about twenty empty cartridge shells. The corpse looked as if the man had been killed several days ago. He had only 56 cents in money and a couple of photographs of himself in his pocket when found. He was well dressed. How he came to his death is not known, although the revolver found by his side would seem to indicate suicide. The body was taken to Raymond's morgue in Wyandotte, where an inquest will be held.

Underpaid Preachers.
Philadelphia Press.

The fact that the great body of Presbyterians find such difficulty year after year in raising the sustentation fund or the money required for the relief of their aged and disabled ministers, their families and the widows of dead clergymen, does not redound to the credit of that body. But $200,000 per year is needed to put that fund on a secure basis, we are told, and this is for the whole country from Maine to California. The amount of relief in each case must be a mere pittance, and should not be begrudged by a church so numerous and wealthy.

The matter of the under-payment of clergymen in all denominations is one which the secular press has done more to bring into notice than the religious. If the Protestant minister foreswore marriage, like the priests of the Roman church, his salary would be an unimportant matter. But an educated man can not support and bring up a family on a salary of from $300 to $1,000 per annum, maintain the position of a gentleman and exercise hospitality and charity and at the same time give his work to the cure of souls. He will be tortured by petty cares and anxieties, his strength will be crippled and his power of serving God lessened.

The Road to Beatrice.

The committee appointed to raise the $1,500 to complete the survey for a road between this city and Beatrice, Neb., has completed its work. The business men of Kansas City fully realize the importance of the road and will give the enterprise good, substantial encouragement. There is no question as to the intention of the projectors of the enterprise. They mean to build the road and are confident that it will prove a paying investment.

The fact can not be too often made public that the proposed road penetrates a rich section of two states, and will give to a great and thriving population a direct line to Kansas City.

The survey will be completed in a few weeks, after which active steps will be taken to have the work of building the road begun at once. Those who have studied the situation closely are convinced that a large amount of stock will be taken by local capitalists.

The committee succeeded in raising $1,700, or $200 more than was actually needed.

They Cannot be Moved.
Special Telegram to The Star.

MUSKOGEE, I. T., Oct. 30.—The Creek council has been dealing with whites this week, in an attempt to get them moved from the territory. They passed a measure to issue no more permits, but it was vetoed by Chief Perryman. Yesterday an attempt was made to overrule his veto but it failed. Had the bill passed it would have been disastrous to many whites in the country. It is reported on the streets to-day that they are making an effort to do away with all licensed traders, but the measure will probably fail owing to many of them finding the traders a necessity to enable them to tide over their crops.

Will Have to Guess Again.

CARMI, Ill., Oct. 29.—A special from Santa Fe, N. M., in yesterday's dailies stated that Judge Vincent was considered the unfit judge referred to in President Cleveland's famous letter of rebuke, and that Congressman Townshend, of Illinois, was the man to whom the letter was addressed. A message from Mr. Townshend, who is now at his home in Shawneetown, says: "I never recommended Judge Vincent. I never received a letter from the president about the matter in question, and I did not know I had been mentioned in connection with the the affair. So far as I am concerned the statement is wholly false."

The celebration lasted from 6 a. m. until the same hour in the evening. Those who participated were clad in blue silk robes. In his address to his fellow Chinamen the consul referred to the Wyoming outrage at some length and he said he had no doubt that the American government would see justice done in the matter.

BOYCOTTERSON TOP.

THE WAR WITH THE AUTHORITIES.

Editor Stead's Hopeless Case—Russia Jealous of Austria and Servia—News from Vienna Unreliable—The German Liberals in a Majority—Other Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to The Star.

STROKESTOWN, County Roscommon. Oct. 30.—In this district boycotting has been reduced to a science and the land grabbers have disappeared or surrendered under the pressure of popular opinion. The government has made the strongest efforts to stem the boycotting tide. Thirty men have already been sentenced to terms of imprisonment without any effect. A new batch of summonses were issued, affecting, it is said, 200 persons. The first batch came on for trial to-day. In the former cases the local leaders advised the persons summoned and they refused to give bail, with the result that all thirty were committed to prison for one month. Under the direction of the central organization different tactics were pursued. To-day Mr. MacEnerny, a barrister, was sent down to defend the boycotters and under his advice they objected to the summary jurisdiction of the magistrate and demanded trial by jury. The result was that one set was sent for trial, bail being accepted. A number of other cases were dismissed and the remaining cases were adjourned till to-morrow. This means an intended defeat of the government prosecutions.

Russia Ready for the Worst.
Special Telegram to The Star.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Dispatches from St. Petersburg to-day state that the Russian cabinet officials allege that Austria and Servia are intriging for territorial aggrandizement detrimental to Russian interests in the Balkan peninsula. Their information must have been received from what they consider a reliable source, as it is plain that Russia has for some time past been secretly arming with the view to be prepared at any moment, should a contingency arise, to assert her claims in the Balkan states.

A telegram from Phillipopolis say that the war fever has abated considerably there during the past few days. The schools have been reopened and affairs are assuming their normal aspect as before the uprising.

The Roumanian government has expelled from Roumania a dozen eminent Jewish editors. It is supposed that this action was prompted by attacks made upon the government by these editors.

The German Liberals Ahead.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—Berlin will be represented in the next parliament by nine outspoken Liberals as hitherto. Yesterday's elections passed off quietly. Returns from the provinces are incomplete, but as far as known no great changes have been made. It appears the Conservatives have failed to obtain necessary increase in order to secure a majority in the diet. They triumphed in Pomerania, Brandenberg and Eastern Prussia, except in the principal towns, which were carried by the German Liberals. The Clericals retain their former strength in Westphalia and the Rhine provinces. The German Liberals have so far carried twenty-five seats.

Two of the Burglars Caught.

CARLISLE, England, Oct. 30.—Further details of the robbery at Netherby hall show that four constables instead of three were wounded, one dying last night. After the police gave up pursuit the villagers, who had rallied to their aid, continued the chase and drew so near to the burglars as to force them to take refuge in a moving freight train. The authorities telegraphed to the next station and a force of police awaited the arrival of the train. Only two of the robbers were arrested, however, as the others had jumped off the train before reaching town.

Government Troops Defeated.

LIMA, Oct. 30.—A dispatch from Canta reports the government troops were surprised on the night of Oct. 24 by the rebels and obliged to retire to the heights, whither Montoneros followed them, resulting in the defeat of the Montoneros with the loss of their baggage and animals.

A fearful explosion has occurred in the mines at Colquechaca, Bolivia. Several persons were killed.

A Bad Set.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The effect of Mr. Stead's powerful speech to the jury yesterday was to a great extent neutralized to-day by the testimony and demeanor in the witness box of Mrs. Jarrett. The admission of the woman that she has led a most sinful life was scarcely compatible with her sanctimonious manner while testifying, and it was quite evident she strove hard to convey the impression that her reformation was thorough and her contrition deep.

Stock Jobbing Dispatches.

VIENNA, Oct. 30.—Sensational dispatches from the Bulgarian-Servian frontier continue to be published here but they should be received with great caution. Bulgaria Longs for Peace.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—An opinion prevails in Bulgaria that the Balkan conference will prove a failure and the country longs for peace, but it has enough money to maintain an army during the winter without contracting loans. One-third of the population of Servia is composed of Bulgarians and the best soldiers in King Milan's army are Bulgarians.

The Stead Trial.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The trial of Stead editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, and other defendants in the Armstrong case was resumed to-day. Mrs. Jarrett, one of the defendants, continued her testimony.

Go to the fat stock show.

WITH the money already subscribed for the preliminary survey of the Nebraska & Northwestern road, and the towns through which it will pass extending the most liberal encouragement, there is no reason to doubt that the road will be built. It will prove a most valuable addition to the railroad system of Kansas City and will open up an entirely new field for Kansas City enterprise to cultivate.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has previously shown his ability as a letter writer, but his reputation in this direction has been enhanced by the following apt and appropriate message to the widow of General MCCLELLAN:

I am shocked by the news of your husband's death, and while I know how futile are human efforts to console, I must assure you of my deep sympathy in your great grief, and express to you my own sense of affliction at the loss of so good a friend.

THE CORRIGAN cable ordinances will doubtless receive some consideration at the regular council meeting Monday night. The only action which should be taken will be to direct the counseler to propose an ordinance to build cable roads on such streets as are petitioned for by the property owners, the ordinance as far as is practicable to correspond with that granted the cable line. It must be no drag-net giving CORRIGAN extensions and other privileges.

GENERAL HAZEN, chief of the signal service, asks for an appropriation to defray the expense of furnishing to farmers warning of the approach of storms, frosts, etc. Congress should grant this appropriation in justice to the agricultural interests of the country, which heretofore have had little attention from our law makers. These warnings are of almost inestimable value to farmers and do much toward protecting crops from the disastrous effects of unexpected and unseasonable storms and when they can be had at such trifling expenses should by all means be given.

THE fat stock show now in progress at Riverview Park is one of the best ever seen in America and as such, especially representing as it does the wide awake character of Kansas City business, should be liberally patronized by the general public. The fat stock show is an enterprise which could be successful in very few cities of this country and would prove a disastrous failure at many more pretentious places. But here it has proven to be a successful venture and if properly sustained by the local people will be a permanent institution. The live stock trade constitutes one of the chief elements in Kansas City's prosperity and as such should receive all the encouragement which Kansas City people can give.

MRS. GRANT has set at rest the rumors that she is about to cause the removal of her husband's remains from their resting place at Riverside park, and in doing so has given two reasons which should forever stop the mouths of all critics of her course. She says: "Riverside was selected by myself and family as the burial place of my husband, General GRANT, because I believed New York was his preference and because it is near the residence that I hope to occupy as long as I live, and where I will be able to visit his resting place often." These are private reasons, but they aae reasons every believer in woman's love and devotion will honor. While the great dead is to a certain extent the property of the country which he honored and which in turn honored him, his remains are even more the property of the family which he placed higher in his affections than all the honors which empires, monarchies or republics could bestow upon him.

AN attempt was made yesterday to assassinate M. DEFREYCINET, the French minister of foreign affairs, but it was a failure. There seems to be a singular lack of knowledge about the use of firearms among people who are inclined to be assassins. Very seldom does a week pass by but some European potentate is made a target for a crank's poorly aimed pistol. Very fortunate it is in this case, however, not only for the individual concerned, but for France, that the aim was so poor. Had the assassin succeded in killing the premier it would have caused an explosion of the slumbering volcano which is always ready to burst in France, and there would have been an end to the republic. This latter institution has only a frail grip on life at the best, and only wants an excuse to collapse. The would-be murderer is an Italian apparently, and says the crime was not dictated by political motives, but was purely the result of a private grudge, although the assassin claims that he did not even know the premier personally. The probable truth of the matter is that the criminal is only a crank, who wanted to make himself "famous" as so many of his predecessors have done.

Amusements.

That charming artist, Modjeska, will open at Gillis Opera house Monday night and continue through Tuesday and Wednesday, giving four performances in all and a change of bill each performence, "Prince Zilah" on Monday, Adrienne Lecouvreur" on Tuesday, "Camille" at the matinee Wednesdey, and Wednesday evening "As You Like It."

Her opening play, "Prince Zilah," is a new one and has never been presented in Kansas City before. It was written first as a novel by Julius Claretie and was dramatized by him for the Gymnase in Paris, being produced with Jane Hading and Damala in the cast. It had a run of one year at that theater. Mme. Modjeska's adaption was written by Ernest Warren of London, and is the same which Mr. and Mrs. Kendall will produce at the St. James theater, London. Mme. Modjeska takes the part Marza in the play, and her support will contain: E. H. Vanderfelt as "Prince Zilah," L. L. Henderson, Leslie Allen, T. L. Coleman, James Cooper, Misses Kate Wilson, Kate Denin Wilson, Evelyn and Mary Shaw. Of the delightful quality of Mme. Modjeska's art, its grace and womanly charm, it is hardly necessary to speak. Her impersonations are marked by intelligence and delicate refinement.

At the Coates to-night Gilmore's band wil give the following programme:

1. Overture—"Tannhauser" .... Wagner
Gilmore's Band.
2. Idyl—"Pure as Snow" .... Lange
Gilmore's Band.
3. Solo for flute—"Bird of Paradise" .... Lax
Mr. Fred Lax—
Accompanied by a quartette of French horns. Messrs. Weston, Mueller, Zilm and Eller.
4. Grand Opera Selection .... Meyerbeer
Gilmore's Band.
5. Scena and Cavatina from Ernani—
"Ernani in Volami" .... Verdi
Mlle. Louise Pyk.
6. Quartette for Trombones—
"Soldier Chorus from Faust." ..... Gounod
Messrs. Goericke, Wilson, Krueger and Raffayolo.

To-night Chas. L. Davis, who is in no sense an actor, will appear at the Gillis in a play pirated from "Josh Whitcomb," known as "Alvin Joslyn." Davis has with him some magnificent diamonds and a brass band of great merit.

Monday night the McGibeny family will open the new music hall.

Monday Joe Murphy appears at the Coates.

THE CITY.

Second Day of the Great Fat Stock Exhibition.

A Good Attendance and Fine Display of Stock.

The Westport Line to be Changed to a Cable Road.

Caught by a Crook---Other City News of To-day.

The Fat Stock Show.

The second day of the third annual fat stock show opened this morning with a good attendance of stockmen. The morning was chilly and a cold east wind blowing, but later in the day the prospect for a good attendance of citizens was flattering. The number of Kansas Cityans to be seen on the ground yesterday were very few, but exceeded the attendance of the first day of either of its predecessors. A good number of ladies and gentlemen from the suburban towns of Missouri and Kansas were present yesterday, and greatly admired the animals.

Among the animals which caused general admiration were the following splendid specimens:

"Burleigh's Bride," a fine animal, crossed Angus and Hereford, weighing 1,950 pounds; two beautiful trained steers, "Jim Blaine" and "John A. Logan," weighing respectively 2,075 and 2,140 pounds, and the two Herefords, "Suspense" and "Champion," are all entered by the Indiana Blooded Stock company; the two, ten and eighteen months old steers, of Gudgell & Simpson, Independence, Kas., are very much admired; Morrow & Renick, of Clintonville, Ky., have a beautiful Shorthorn steer, "Weathers," and a superb grade Hereford bull, "Schooler;" "Bluebird," a fine grade Galloway, under 2 years old, M. R. Platt, Johnson, Kas.; and the beautiful Shorthorn steer, "Snow Bird," the property of Mr. James Richardson, of Roanoke, Kas. It would be useless to continue giving names, as they are all as much to be admired as those mentioned. A prominent stockman stated this morning that in his opinion Kansas City would in the future be the great center of the stock trade.

The weighing of cattle was finished this morning about 11 o'clock, and the records show great weight for the size of some animals. The weighing of sheep was then taken up. The committee on the awarding of premiums will commence work to-morrow.

The ladies of Trinity church have a dining hall on the grounds and supply the wants of the visitor in this line.

The exhibition will continue until next Thursday, the gates being opened each day at 8 o'clock. The park will also be open on Sunday. Everybody should attend, as they will see such royal animals as are seldom to be seen. Every encouragement should be given the association, as it is one of those booms which Kansas City enjoys, and our citizens should strive to make the association permanent.

THE EXHIBITORS.

The following is a list of some of the exhibitors at the meeting:

James A. Funkhouser, Plattsburg, Mo., five grade Herefords. These animals are under 1 year and are the finest specimens of young cattle to be found anywhere.

PERSONAL.

Mr. F. E. Thurston, of the Chicago Farmer's Review, is taking in the show. Mr. Thurston states that he has attended a good many fat stock exhibitions and pronounces Kansas City's equal to any of them, both in number and grades of cattle exhibited.

H. A. Wray, of the Pittsburg National Stockman and Farmer, is attending the show.

A. H. Sanders, junior editor, W. R. Goodwin and L. R. Hildebrand, of the Chicago Breeders' Gazette, are at the park.

REDISTRICTING THE CITY.

The Work of Changing Ward Boundaries Will Soon be Considered by the Council.

It is expected that the population of Kansas City, according to the census of 1885, will be made known to the council next Monday night. The work of counting the names and eliminating duplicates is nearly completed and Mr. Tinsley will undouotedly be able to submit a report at Monday night's meeting of the council.

When this report is received another very important piece of work will come before the council, and should be considered without any unnecessary waste of time. When the question of taking a census of the city was first raised in the council, the work of redistricting the city was well under way. Five or six plans for changing the ward boundaries had been prepared, presented to the council and thoroughly debated. When a census of the city's population was ordered taken the work of redistricting the city came to a stand-still, members of the council holding that a more satisfactory change could be made in the wards if the committee on plans could have before it figures showing the actual population not only of the old wards but also of the territory embraced in the recent extension. In order to utilize these figures it became necessary to suspend the work of redistricting for two or three weeks. "The aim of the committee," remarked a gentleman this morning, "should be to throw a portion of the new territory into each ward, so far as possible and that can best be done by dividing the city into six wards, something after the plans suggested by Aldermen Moss and Cox. The newly acquired territory will demand many improvements and if it is tacked on to the old wards it will probably get just what it is entitled to and no more."

There will probably be a strong fight in the council when the committee on plans makes its report. A few members are possessed with the idea that the commercial importance of a city depends upon the number of aldermen who legislate for the people, and are therefore anxious to divide the city into ten or a dozen wards. Other members, for purely political reasons, want the city handicapped by twenty or thirty councilmen and their efforts in this direction are ably seconded by men who look upon the city treasury as the legitimate prey of ringsters.

TURNER STILL TRANQUIL.

He Denies the Statement that He Used a Coupling Pin for a Hitching Weight.

The coroner's jury in the Conway murder case has adjourned until next Tuesday to allow the detectives and those in charge to thoroughly investigate the various points brought out in the evidence. Major Woodson this morning stated that the evidence points very pointedly towards Turner. He says the evidence thus far, together with Turner's own statements, locate him at the house about the time the deed was done. That the statements in reference to his shaving his beard are contradictory. That there is evidence, positive evidence, that some milk man has been in the habit of using a coupling pin for a weight to hitch his horse to, and the question is—was it Turner? Colonel Mansur, of Chillicothe, an ex-member of congress, and a lawyer, called on Turner, this morning, at the latter's request. They consulted for sometime, but to what purpose is not known.

A STAR reporter had another interview with Turner this morning, but did not find him in as good spirits as yesterday morning. When the reporter was locked up in the cell Turner was sitting upon his cot, but cordially said, "Good morning," and extended his hand. He said:

"Major Warner was here yesterday afternoon, and has promised to look after my case. Colonel Mansur called on me this morning, but didn't have much to say. There seems to be a great deal of talk about my shaving my beard. What did I shave for? What would you shave for, now just tell me? Why, I shaved for the same reason that anybody else would. It was getting dirty. I am not positive what day it was, but think it was Monday, somewhere near the middle of the day. I generally attend to such matters when I have finished my route. I was shaved at a barber shop near the Palace restaurant, corner of Twelfth street and Grand avenue. The barber could probably tell you exactly what time it was. No! (with emphasis.) I never did carry a coupling pin in my milk cart for a weight to hitch my horse, or for anything else. Yes, I am getting along all right. Bring me up a STAR the next time you come. Good day.

As the reporter left, Mr. Turner's son entered, carrying with him some eatables to cheer his father's confinement.

Those engaged in working up the case admit that there is no absolute proof of Turner's guilt, but that Turner was there, after having shaved his beard, and that if he did not do it, no one who did do it could have come out without Turner seeing him. The fact that some milkman has been carrying a coupling pin as a weight to hitch his horse to, together with the above, is very damaging.

HE CASHED THE CHECK.

An Illinois Farmer Accommodates Mr. Morgan, Who Was Waiting for the Banks to Open.

Another gudgeon fell victim to the insiduous deceptions of the Union depot confidence man this morning. He was an Illinois farmer and very young in appearance. A smooth-faced young fellow, well clothed and of good address met the farmer, whose name is Keuler, in the depot, called him by name and asked after the entire family of Keuler's, calling each by name down to the newest baby. Keuler was glad to meet a friend so far from home, although he did not recall the face. They had only been together a few moments when the confidence man remarked that it was fortunate they had met, as he had a freight bill to pay on the remains of a dead brother, and had nothing about him but a check for $530. He explained that the banks were not yet open, but that he would transfer the check to Mr. Keuler, thus enabling him to lend the money with perfect security. Keuler only had $190, but Mr. Morgan kindly agreed to try and make that amount answer. The Illinois sucker had a big "billy" in his pocket with which he said he would have "paralyzed that feller if I had only thought in time." He had been west buying land and was returning to his farm.

Depot Master John Rogers caught Morgan before he escaped. Keuler identified the prisoner at the Second precinct police station, but none of the money was found.

ENLARGE THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

Colonel Case Says the Postoffice Must Have More Room.

"I will be glad when my successor can take hold," said Postmaster Case, "and I do not envy him his position in these cramped, inconvenient quarters. Already it is impossible to do justice to the public in the distribution of the mails because of our lack of space and help in the various departments. We do not have as many employes as the work requires, but we would not have room for them probably, if the department increased the force. The carriers' department and mailing room, which are now entirely too small, might be made to answer for three years more by filling out the rear angles of the building with two one story additions. But this addition would not help out the general delivery which is squeezed into a space about half large enough, and which does not admit of extension or alteration. There is only room for two general delivery clerks and there should be at least four. As it is, the public depending on the general delivery is compelled to suffer constant inconvenience because we are unable to hand out the mail fast enough. No, the president cannot appoint my successor too soon."

A CABLE TO WESTPORT.

The Kansas City and Westport Horse Railway Company Converting its Line into a Cable.

The Westport horse railway company is securing permission from property owners to convert its line into a cable railway. It has been currently reported on the streets that the Westport line was to be purchased by a newly organized cable company, with the Smith-Keating firm as a nucleus. Mr. D. A. Holmes, the attorney for the Westport company, said to-day that there was no truth in this report, but that the company would convert its line into a cable without the assistance or interference of outside capitalists. The city council will be asked for the change in franchise necessary to construct the cable line at its next meeting. The new cable will not be constructed to Westport at once, although it is the ultimate intention of the company to extend it. For the present the cable will only reach to an undetermined point between the new and old city limits.

The Mystery Explained.

To the Editor of The Star.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 29, '85.—I see you claim to have a Webb Perfecting press. Will you please inform me how you run type on a Webb press? The fashion plates in yesterday's paper shows you do not stereotype. Yours &c.

NEWSPAPER MAN.

[Answer—THE STAR does not print from type, as the correspondent thinks, but from stereotype plates, cast in a curved casting box. The plates spoken of were curved in the casting process, the same as the reading matter. The press is a web press—and not a Webb—and is so called because it prints from a web or roll of paper, which feeds in a continuous sheet and is cut and folded in the printing, the press doing all the work. It is a current tradition among printers and pressmen that the fine lines used in an electrotype cut cannot be reproduced by the stereotyping process, but this fallacious idea wrs thoroughly disproved by the work done on the cuts referred to. It requires efficiency and intelligence on the part of stereotyper and pressman to bring about such results, but THE STAR has in those capacities gentlemen fully possessed of both qualities.—ED. STAR.]

War on Saloons.

Jacob Bell formerly ran two saloons at Rosedale, Kas., but now he is engaged in a work that will gladden the hearts of prohibitionists. While he was engaged in the liquor business he became involved in a difficulty with some lawyer and referred to the professional man in rather profane language. The lawyer retaliated by causing the arrest of Bell, who found it convenient, it is said, to cross the line. Finally he compromised the matter by paying $80 and agreeing to keep out of the saloon business so long as he remained a citizen of Rosedale. After his return to Rosedale he began a war against the other saloon keepers, and, as he has plenty of evidence at hand, it is safe to predict that the saloons will all close within a few weeks. He has already filed information against one or two saloon keepers, and promises to keep up the war until they surrender.

A Match Arranged.

Greek George, the celebrated athlete, is matched to wrestle Charles R. Ward, a young giant who recently challenged him. George has agreed to throw Ward four times in an hour, not counting the time between bouts. If he fails to throw him four times in an hour he is to pay him $50. The winner will receive a percentage of the door receipts.

Greek George is noted for his skill and strength, and is confident that he will have but little difficulty in winning the match. Wards stands 6 feet 1 inch, and weighs 280 pounds. He is powerful as a giant, and knows how to wrestle. The match will take place next Wednesday; the place has not yet been agreed upon, but it will probably come off at the Walnut street theatre.

Death From Injuries.

Last night Albert Lamont, colored, was run over by cars while crossing the Union Pacific tracks near Armstrong. Lamont was chopping wood for the company in that neighborhood and the Pacific freight train approached from the west just as Lamont was crossing the track. The engineer whistled and rang the bell, but the warning was not heard by Lamont. He was knocked down and several cars ran over him before the train was stopped He had one leg cut off close to his body. He was taken to his home near the Missouri Pacific round house, where he died within a couple of hours after the accident. The deceased was unmarried and well known among his race.

An Enjoyable Entertainment.

An enjoyable entertainment was given by Farragut post No. 3, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief corps No. 11 last night at Arion hall. At the close of the literary and musical exercises a handsome banner was presented to the Relief corps by Mr. E. J. McVey. The latter part of the evening was spent in dancing.

Police News.

In the recorder's court this morning fines were administered to six drunks and three disturbers of the peace. Harry Davenport for begging on the street, was fined $25. Four girls, for frequenting saloons, were taxed $12 each. The police have received instructions to raid all saloons frequented by this class of women.

Temporary Injunction.

A temporary injunction was yesterday granted in the case of George M. White vs. William Tobener. White has brought suit to compel Tobener to cease running his saloon on Lydia avenue, as he has no county license. The case will be argued Saturday.

A Party of Indians.

A party of Indians passed through the city last night enroute to Marshfield, Wis., where the children will be placed in school. The Indians were from the Pottawatomie reservation, near Silver Lake, Kas.

Till Tapped.

Some one tapped the till of the "keg saloon dive," near the corner of Third and Main streets, last night, and obtained $32.

An Old Rabbit.

Pall Mall Gazette.

Here is a story which beats the old dog stories hollow. According to M. Laborde, a writer in the Revue Scientifique, a rabbit, one of the ordinary tame species, was bought for purposes of experiment at the Physiological laboratory in Paris, and after a portion of the facial nerve had been removed it was left to run about the laboratory. It very soon recovered from the effect of the operation, and was for four years M. Laborde's affectionate companion. It would await at the top of the stairs his arrival in the morning and would sometimes run to meet him. Whenever it had the opportunity the rabbit would jump upon his knee, and was as fond of caresses as a cat. During the progress of an experiment it would sit on the operating table watching the proceedings with every appearance of interest. Bunny's chief delight, however, was in a microscopical examination. As soon as M. Laborde put his eye to the microscope the rabbit would perch upon his shoulders and endeavor to take a peep. This wonderful animal lived on terms of the most intimate friendship with two dogs belonging to the laboratory; but when a strange dog arrived he invariably turned it out, and sometimes chased it along the street. Nor did he show himself very friendly to unfamiliar biped visitors.

Will Wonders Never Cease?

We were very much surprised yesterday afternoon in passing the street car barn of the Corrigan Consolidated Street Railroad company to find the men busy at work washing the cars on the stock yard line. The people will wonder along this line why this was done and what they mean by it. The only way we can account for it is they have been reading that Magnetic soap man's article in the papers where he says that cleanliness is next to Godliness, and they want to get a front seat in the church. Continue in the good work; after you get through with the stock yard line, give the others a little scrubbing out. Use the Magnetic soap; there is no doubt it is one of the best articles in the morket. Use it freely and all of your patrons will rise up and say blesse be thy named.

A BIG DAY'S WORK.

An Important Arrest.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—An important arrest was made by Deputy United States Marshal Goode and Officer Pat. Burke at the office of the Missouri Pacific road yesterday. Nearly two weeks ago Marshal Cousins received instructions from the United States attorney at Denver, Col., to arrest H. K. Pinckney charged with subordination of perjury and conspiracy in making pre-emption entries on the public lands. He left Memphis according to the marshal's information Oct. 7, and was seen last at the Planters house Oct. 10. Julh Smith, a pal of Pinckney's, Lee McBonnell and Richard Salzgibber were the only persons in St. Louis supposed to know him but a useful clue was furnished in the information that letters would probably be forwarded to him from Langstaff & Co., of Memphis, through the postoffice. Pinckney was traced to 2221 Chestnut street, but the deputy marshal who called was refused admission by the landlady, Mrs. Hodge. Knowing Pinckney had applied for work, at Missouri Pacific offices the marshal sent word that he was wanted there. Deputy Goode and Officer Burke kept watch and finally nipped him yesterday. The District attorney at Denver was notified and wired that a copy of the indictment had been sent. Pinckney says he was a clerk in the land office at Pueblo for nine years with R. C. Bloomfield, general manager of the Arkansas Valley Land & Cattle company, and others. He was arrested in February, 1884, for conspiracy and subornation of perjury. After mistrials and delays Bloomfield was convicted in October, 1884, fined $1,000 and given three months in jail. Pinckney forfeited his bail ($2,000) by not being present and since that time has been in St. Louis working part of the time for Pierce Bros., printers. He says he has not been in Memphis in seven years. He says he expects the same treatment that Bloomfield received.

The New Pension Building Flooded.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—During the rainstorm last night considerable damage was done by water. The basement of the new pension building was flooded. Suspicious Characters.

A large number of real tough characters were run in to-day, and will be shown up at roll call to-night.

Sarah Bernhardt's Rival.

Paris Letter to San Francisco Argonaut.

I hope you did not pay any attention to the exaggerated reports of Sarah Bernhardt's accident. She fell down stairs and cut her face a little, but the injury was so slight that it kept her in her room only a day or two, and nothing but a skin-deep scar remains to remind us of the tragedy which might have robbed us of the diaphanous goddess—but didn't. So the dramatic season will not be deprived of its chief attraction this year. For, whatever nonsense may be written to the contrary, Sarah is still the undisputed and indisputable queen of the footlights, and if she were to leave the boards, it would take a good many Jane Hadings and Blanche Persons to console us. Some of the critics, greatly influenced by the good dinners of Jane's husband, M. Koning, have for the last year or so been trying their hardest to pursuade us that Hading is not only the legitimate successor of Sarah, but actually her rival. As a matter of fact, she is no more to be compared to her than the moon is to be likened to the sun. She is a very charming actress—good in domestic drama, and dainty enough in an operetta (you know, of course, she began her career as an exponent of Lecocq, and only took to comedy as a genteel after-thought)—but there's the end of it. She could not attempt the tragic or the historic, and no amount of prettiness will atone for the want of power, such as Sarah shows in "Theodora" or "Fedora."

RIVER REMINISCENCES.

Anecdotes of the Mississippi Steamboat Men of Other Days.

Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

"I tell you," he said, throwing himself back in a heavy armchair, "the Mississippi is no longer what it used to be; the railroads have ruined it. There will be no more such steamers as the R. E. Lee, the Richardson, or others of their class built. The steamers used to float all the cotton of the valley to New Orleans, and were built to carry from 5,000 to 8,000 bales. The week, however, which it required a steamer to take it down is now reduced to twenty-four hours by rail. Railroads are following the course of the river and robbing it of its trade, and I look forward to the day when the Mississippi river will be abandoned entirely in favor of rail.

"Yes," he continued in answer to a question, "gamblers used to have a picnic along the river, but that day, too, is passed. It is not because people have grown better, but because they have less money. I once saw two men in a dispute over a game, rise from their chairs, place their pistols at each other's temples and fire simultaneously. Their dead bodies were carried away, and the game continued as if nothing had happened. Those were wild days, and are not likely to return.

They Disagreed With Him.

New York Mail.

Miss Jones—I do so wish to go to the De Veres' dinner next Tuesday. You are going Mr. Dumb, are you not?

Mr. Dumb—Ah, tell the truth, I don't care for that sort of thing, you know. Deucedly slow.

Miss Jones—Yes, but they are going to have a new style of candelabra on the table I hear. That surely ought to tempt you.

Mr. Dumb—Well, you see, Miss Jones, fact is I don't care for candelabra much, you know.

Miss Jones—You don't?

Mr. Dumb—Naw, all kinds of canned fruit disagree with me.

The Slayer of Jesse James.

Denver Republican.

The other day a cowboy-looking individual walked briskly over the marble floor of the Windsor hotel lobby up to the counter and giving the register a jerk to one side, seized a pen and hurriedly wrote his name in large letters, which reached from one side of the page to the other.

The clerk was busy at the time and did not notice the stranger's presence until the register was given another emphatic jerk and the pen which had just been in use was thrown violdntly back into its rack.

Then the clerk leaned over the register and as he read the regulation hotel-clerk smile changed into a look of disgust. The clerk shook his head and said something to the stranger which made the shaggy hair of the cowboy stand out straight behind. Then the visitor became violent and was gesticulating wildly when three stout looking men, who had been quietly summoned by the clerk, came up and without any ado hustled the fellow out upon the sinewalk, and he was told to move on.

The would-be guest, as indicated on the register, was Bob Ford, the slayer of Jesse James.

"Mr. Hammerslough, I am sent here by THE STAR to find out from you if the report from New York is correct, that you bought largely of the Bankrupt Clothing House of Griesman & Taylor, and that their account with you has been attached in your hands."

"Partially correct, sir. We bought very largely from Griesman & Taylor before they failed, but for Cash. We don't owe them a dollar."

"Is it a large failure, Mr. Hammerslough?"

"Yes, sir; they owe several hundred thousand dollars, and I learn they have been arrested."

"Did you know they were in a failing condition when your purchases were made?"

"No, sir; they sold goods very cheap for immediate cash, and we bought largely from them."

"Does this purchase account for the great rush you are having?"

"Partially so, perhaps. We made another great purchase lately of Bachman, Naumburg & Co., who have retired from the clothing trade. They were considered one of the very best boys' clothing manufacturers in this country. The partners did not agree among themselves. We bought the greater part of their stock, which we are enabled to offer to our customers at greatly reduced figures."

"Mr. Hammerslough, I see you announced a change in firm and business, shortly."

"Yes, sir; it is my intention to make a great change in our business, and I may decide to sell my interest in the firm and retire from the clothing business—been at it for thirty-seven years, and am almost tired out. At any rate, the stock will be closed out very low, and the chances are almost sure that the clothing business has seen the last of me this year."

"Good morning, Mr. Hammerslough."

"Good morning, Mr. Reporter."

SEVENTH AND MAIN STS.

KANSAS CITY, MO., OCT. 30, 1885.

TO OUR PATRONS:

It is universally conceded that the business outlook for the coming Winter Season is bright. The reports from all sections of the country of a large and increased Wool, Cotton Wheat and Grain Crop, the starting of Mills and Manufactories that have long been idle or running on short time only, and the consequent employment of the great army of workmen in the land, indicate good prospects for a marked improvement in all branches of trade. In contemplation, therefore, of a demand for better grade goods we have made especial efforts in the selection of fabrics and the production of our large and varied stock of Men's, Youths', Boys' and Children's Fine and Medium Grades of Clothing, believing it to be for our interest to give you the VERY BEST VALUES at the LOWEST PRICES compatible with good workmanship and the Quality of Goods we Sell, and that it is best for the consumer to buy Good Goods at fair prices, instead of cheap goods at low prices.

"There is a flimsy extravagance in imaginary cheapness."

The utmost care is used in the making and trimming of our garments, thereby enabling us to assure our patrons that only RELIABLE and WELL MADE Goods can be found in our stock.

We cater for the patronage of all who wish substantially made, well fitting garments, supplanting custom work, at half the prices asked by Merchant Tailors.

Awaiting your commands with the largest and most select stock of Men's and Boys' Winter Wear in the City.

I am, your obedient, A. N. SADLER,
